SOLICITOR ALMON ACQUITTED BY JURY

Prosecutor For Eighth District Is Held Not Guilty

Sweeping Victory Is Won By Popular Official In Federal Court At Huntsville By Decision Of The Jury

CONVICT SEVERAL DEFENDANTS ON RUM CONSPIRACY CHARGES

Verdict In Noted Hearing Returned To Judge Grubb In Federal Court About Eleven O'clock This Morning

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Oct. 14.—Solicitor David C. Almon, of the eighth judicial circuit, Wednesday morning was declared not guilty by a federal court jury here of conspiracy to violate the Volstead prohibition act.

News of the acquittal of the popular official spread rapidly throughout the district and within a few minutes congratulatory messages began to pour in on him from all counties in his district.

Seven other defendants, alleged members of a liquor ring, said to have operated in Decatur, were tried at the same time and John Sherrill was acquitted, the others being found guilty by the jury, which made its report about eleven o'clock this morning. The sentences will be pronounced by the court later, it was announced.

The sensational hearing came to a close yesterday late, when the case was given to the jury, after scores of witnesses, from Albany and Decatur and other points in the state, had given evidence, and a notable array of attorneys had pleaded their cases before the jurors.

The case was given to the jury early last night, following the conclusion of addresses by attorneys for the government and for the defense.

Speaking for the defense were attorneys Archie Carmichael, of Tusculum, Douglas Taylor of Huntsville, R. E. Smith of Huntsville; Milton Lanier of Huntsville; state Senator Melvin Hutson, of Albany-Decatur.

District Attorney Kennemer and Assistant District Attorney Smith, of Birmingham, addressed the jury for the government.

Sentences on seven men, accused of conspiracy and convicted in federal court here in connection with the alleged liquor ring, were passed by Judge W. I. Grubb, in United States district court late today as follows:

Dee Almon, Marion Blackwell, C. W. Collier, Abe Powell, Joe Gunn, Ros Barber two years in the Atlanta penitentiary; Lonnie Allen, one year and one day in the Atlanta penitentiary.

David C. Almon, of Albany, circuit solicitor of the Eighth Alabama circuit who was on trial with eight others charged with conspiracy to violate the Volstead act, took the stand in his own defense yesterday and made complete denial that he advised enforcement officers not to report an alleged liquor violation.

This testimony of the grizzled prosecutor who has seen thirty years of live service was fully corroborated by J. W. Lambert, sheriff of Cullman county and Miss Leda Brown, who is Mr. Almon's stenographer. Both are in the Almon office on June 9 when the alleged offense took place.

Solicitor Almon swore that two state and one federal prohibition enforcement men on that date brought Marion Blackwell an alleged bootlegger Decatur, to his officed and said they agreed among themselves to a fine of $500 in state court and had agreed not to report the case to federal authorities. Mr. Almon said told the officers that an agreement they might make between them-selfs and Judge W. T. Lowe of the Morgan county court would be satisfactory to him, although he did not prosecute in the county court, but only in the circuit court.

The testimony was finished at 1 o'clock yesterday after most of the other defendants jointly indicted with the solicitor had taken the stand in their own behalf.

James Smith of Birmingham, assistant United States district attorney an old time political enemy of the Almon family, put Solicitor Almon through a savage cross examination but was unable to shake his testimony. The sixty year old defendant who has been circuit solicitor for 21 years and who has been prosecuting in one or more counties of his present circuit for thirty four years, was deeply affected as he took the stand but recovered his composure in a few moments.

Solicitor Almon denied emphatically that he had gone out of the room and held a private conversation with Marion Blackwell and in this Sheriff Lambert and Miss Brown backed him up also.

"This state prohibition agent, whom I had asked to come to North Alabama to help clean up my district, came into my office on June 2 with Blackwell, a crippled boy," said Solicitor Almon.

"He said 'we have agreed to let him off with a fine of $500; I told them any agreement they made with Judge Lowe would be agreeable to me and, I felt sure to the county solicitor, who is an official over whom I have no control and who is elected by vote of the people instead of being appointed by me. I tried to call Judge Lowe and advise him of the agreement but was unable to reach him. The officers then left after a few minutes, but J. N. Robertson, the federal dry agent joined them before they left. I positively did not tell him that he should not report the matter to his superiors."

"Did you say he did not have to report the case?" asked A. H. Carmichael of Tusculum, for counsel for solicitor Almon.

"I did not," stated Mr. Almon, "I did not state that then or at any later time."

Asked if such conferences were usual, Mr. Almon said they were not and that he had always tried, if consistent with his sense of duty, to agree to agreements made by law enforcement officials, whether state or federal.

It was also developed that Mr. Almon in Montgomery about April had asked Coleman to come to Decatur and had written a letter to Judge Hargett, federal prohibition chief in Alabama, asking that Robinson be sent also. This fact was developed by Judge Hargett who was placed on the stand and Coleman, the state officer, admitted it also on cross examination.

"Did you conspire with this defendant, Blackwell, or any other defendants, to violate the prohibition law by inducing the officers not to report the case?" Mr. Almon was asked.

"I did not," he replied.

"Did you make any arrangement whereby a gambling house was to be operated in Decatur?"

"I did not. On the contrary I came to the court and asked the jury to

GINNINGS REACH TO 18,855 BALES UNTIL FIRST DAY OCTOBER

Farmers Declare That 40 Per Cent Yield Still Unpicked

RAINS DAMAGE IS UNESTIMATED

Valley Leads State In Totals For 1925 Staple Crop

Morgan county ginnings reached 18,855 bales up until October 1, according to reports made public today through W. V. Davidson, receiving the government report. This figure goes far above any previous record made in this county until that date heretofore.

Albany-Decatur and Hartselle have received the bulk of ginnings of the 1925 bumper cotton yield owing to splendid facilities for handling and being the centers of the county. Other of the smaller towns and communities have received a goodly share of the ginnings.

Agricultural observers declared today that though this is the largest crop report for this period of the year that has ever been known, that there remains between 30 and 40 per cent of the crop in the fields. This statement is contradictory to that made known Tuesday from Lawrence and Lauderdale counties in which it was stated that fully 80 per cent of the crop has been gathered, ginned and baled.

With 40 per cent of the yield still in the fields it is regarded as a certainty that the recent rains have hindered progress, pickers and farmers alike are idle and the crop damage is as yet unestimated.

The Tennessee Valley is leading the state this year in total cotton output with an estimate of 200,000 bales. Morgan county is likely to be well up in the list of North Alabama counties with an estimated aggregate of between 30,000 and 40,000 bales.

This tremendous output gives a decided optimistic outlook to the cotton grower and merchant alike. Farmers today were still holding to their cotton, it was said, though the market took a slight rise. Many confidently expect the market to reach well toward the 30 cent figure near the latter part of October or the first of November.

Pullman Service On Accommodations

Milton Andrews, ticket agent at Albany today announced that beginning Friday, October 16, a parlor car will be placed in operation on the Louisville and Nashville railroad on trains numbers 15-101 and 102-14, operating between Decatur, Birmingham and Tusculum and general know as the "accommodation."

J. H. Settle, division passenger agent in making the announcement of the improvement declared "it is our opinion that our patrons will be glad to avail themselves of this pullman service on these trains."

Movement Launched by Shriners Several Months Ago

Thomas A. Bowles, general chairman of the Shrine movement to raise $20,000 here for the construction of an additional wing to the Benevolent hospital, today announced the personnel of the committee of Albany and Decatur Shriners who will conduct the campaign, with Mr. Bowles as ex-officio member of the committee. The personnel is as follows:

John Patterson.
Charles Rountree.
B. D. Meadors.
J. H. Johnson.

Mr. Bowles announced that the first session of the committee will be held this week, at which time it is expected that the members will arrange the plans for conducting an intensified drive to raise at least $20,000. It is pointed out that this sum would insure the erection of an additional wing, virtually doubling the capacity of the present crowded institution. It may be that a mortgage or bonds of some kind will be necessary to raise the remainder of the sum needed for construction of a building adequate to meet the existing needs.

The movement to aid the hospital was launched by the Shriners of North Alabama sometime ago, the Shriners realizing that the hospital is serving not only the Twin Cities, but neighboring communities as well, that it is not entirely a local enterprise, but an agency for good which is rendering service to the greater part of the Tennessee Valley.

Commissioner Expresses Regret At Delaying Crucial Struggle But Soaked Field Makes Play Impossible There Today

CROWD 'BOOS' LANDIS WHEN HE COUNSELS THEIR PATIENCE

Outfield Becomes Quagmire As Clouds Continue To Pour Moisture On The Park Without Any Let-up

(Associated Press)
PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 14.—A downpour of rain washed out the seventh and deciding game of the world's series today between Washington and Pittsburgh.

Commissioner Landis called off the contest until tomorrow, after a steady downpour had drenched the field and a good share of the ground. The postponement was made at 2:30 o'clock.

Mr. Landis delayed his decision as long as any uncertainty remained, but after more than an hour steady rain the uncovered parts of the field became a quagmire and play was obviously impossible.

"I hate to call it off," Commissioner Landis said, "knowing that fully 15,000 of this crowd are from out of town and under heavy expense in staying another day. At the same time the field's condition is such that the players would be risking injury to go out there. I regret to do it, but there is nothing else to decide except to postpone the game until tomorrow."

The crowd stayed almost intact until the commissioner's decision was made, although it was apparent at two o'clock there was no chance of the game going on. The spectators utilized every available means of protection, but they got pretty well drenched, so far as the bleachers and the exposed parts of the grand stand were concerned.

During the wait for the commissioner's verdict, the restless fans booed and hissed the occasional advice of Landis to sit tight and wait for a possible let up in the downpour. This never came, however, and it was a disappointed and well drenched throng of 45,000 that slowly worked its way out of the park.

FORBES FIELD, PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 14.—It started to rain a trifle at 1:17 o'clock with a slight breeze coming up to stir the clouds, which had hung heavy in the skies throughout the morning. Only a few scattering drops came down at first, but it was enough to cast doubt on whether the combatants would get through their game.

The greatest crush of fans that has yet attempted to see the 1925 championship games eddied and swirled about Forbes Field to gain their places in the background and of the seventh and deciding battle between Washington and Pittsburgh for the world's baseball championship.

This was the crucial test today with the veteran Washington club fighting to defend its title against the on-rush of the inspired young Pirates.

But above all this there was the prospect of a prospective individual clash that almost overshadowed the main goal—a probable pitching battle between the two undefeated hurling heroes of the rival clubs, Vic Aldridge and Walter Johnson.

Johnson was slated to take the mound at the start for Washington, but there was some speculation as to whether Manager Bill McKelchle might not start "Jug Handle" Johnnie Morrison, curve ball star and keep him on the firing line as long as his effectiveness lasts, with Aldridge ready for an emergency, ready to go in and bear down.

plained to the law enforcement officials about it."

On cross examination, Mr. Almon contradicted Coleman flatly that Blackwell was fined $10 on a gaming charge upon another occasion after the case had been continued for almost a year.

"He was fined $100 and this was agreed to and suggested by this man Coleman of the state law enforcement squadron," he said.

Asked as to the punishment meted out to Blackwell in state court for his alleged prohibition violation on June 2, Mr. Almon stated that there had been no session of the county court to try him since.

G. O. Chenault, prominent Albany attorney, was put on the stand to prove that the postponement of the gaming case was due to his serious illness, he having represented Blackwell upon that occasion to postpone when Mr. Chenault was forced by illness to abandon his practice and go to Hot Springs, Ark.

On rebuttal Coleman again testified that Blackwell had been fined only $10 and the case came to a close before the defense could send for the court records to contradict him.

Miss Brown told the details of the conversation in Mr. Almon's office corroborating his testimony as did Sheriff Lambert who said he had come from Cullman to attend to getting a requisition for a man who had gone to Colorado.

"Did Mr. Almon tell these prohibition agents not to report the case to the federal authorities?" asked Mr. Carmichael.

"He did not," said Sheriff Lambert.

As to a conversation in a Decatur cafe in which the dry agent, Robinson had said Mr. Almon had advised him again not to report the case against Blackwell because Blackwell had served six months in jail at Huntsville on a federal charge and because he was a cripple, it was denied by Jimmy James, a Greek restaurant man, that this occurred at the cashier's counter as stated by the federal man.

Among the other defendants who took the stand was Pete Collier, an alleged bootlegger of Decatur, who said he was solicited for a bribe by the dry agents who had said they told him that the district solicitor ought to be fixed in some way also.

"I told them that Mr. Almon was after me and would give his right arm to convict me and there wasn't any use in my going in that direction," said Collier.

Another defendant, Dee Almon, a distant relative of the solicitor said he came to see the dry agents at their invitation and one of them asked if he thought Blackwell would stand for paying them $1,000 for which they would sell him protection. Mr. Almon said he told them he didn't know whether Blackwell would or not and didn't care to have anything to do with the matter. He explained a payment to him of $360 found in Blackwell's ledger by dry agents as being a payment on a loan of $1,100 he made several years ago to Blackwell. He denied that he had ever had anything to do with liquor transactions in any manner whatever.

SYNOPSIS

John Mannering, district attorney, has just learned by telephone that his wife, Eileen, was seen in a notorious inn when it was raided. Then comes word that Eileen is now in the apartment of Jerome Wallace, his opponent in the approaching election. Mrs. Mannering has gone there to demand from Wallace a written pledge that, if elected, he will release young Bob Mannering, accused of causing the death of a woman in an automobile smash.

CHAPTER XI—Continued

As he turned to the table and produced paper and pen she paused at his elbow watching his movements eagerly.

But even as the pen touched the paper he hesitated, waited deliberately, as if with calculating cruelty wishing to play upon Eileen's overwrought nerves. Suddenly a great tenderness seized him, he reached for her hand and drew her towards him.

"Eileen," he murmured softly. Horrified, she pulled away.

He leaned closer, his manner insistent and all pretense cast aside.

She recoiled from him, her scorn of him plain.

His jaw set and with a glint of anger in his eyes, he laid the pen aside.

Eileen watched him aghast. She had lost—Bob had lost—ah, yes, and John had lost.

"Please, please," she pleaded, growing hysterical again.

"Why should I trouble? If you can be unkind so can I."

"I shall tell my husband," she cried frantically.

Wallace laughed.

Wallace pressed warm kisses on her hair.

"I shall tell the newspaper—the world—everyone—how you have tricked me."

He looked her steadily in the eye. "I shall deny it, say that you did it of your own volition."

She received his answer with the utmost contempt.

"Who would believe you? What possible motive would I have for doing it?"

"My love," he retorted, and more deliberately than his meaning might sink home, "My dear, you loved me enough to betray your husband so that I could win the election."

She laughed scornfully, but it was uncertain before his calmness.

"Why," he went on, "you haven't even been so kind as to furnish me your admission." From the table drawer he drew forth a picture.

There was the old mat bearing the inscription, "To Jerry dearest—success and all my love, Eileen." But now in place of her girlhood portrait appeared her latest picture, the one she had sent him that very morning.

"You see, I hold all the trumps," said Wallace with a note of triumph. "But if you had not tried to drive me I would have given you that statement."

She seemed to find a ray of hope in his tones, for her sobbing lessened.

Her tears ceased to flow and as she busied herself with her vanity case she even managed a shy half-friendly smile.

Suspicious of the sudden change in her, he watched her. As she gazed down at the picture on the table, clearly at a loss to account for the presence of her writing there, he never took his eyes off of her.

Finally satisfied, he produced the old print he had replaced on the mat and laid it before her.

Understanding leaped into her eyes and with it something more.

"So you have kept that picture all these years, have you?" she said, regarding him timidly. "I never realized that you cared—that much."

Suddenly with flaming eyes he caught her by the arms and drew her towards him.

"I've always cared, I always will," he breathed huskily. "Jerry," she whispered.

Yet, assured now of his triumph, Wallace pressed warm kisses on her hair. But always when he sought her lips she evaded him, to finally pull away with a tremulous little laugh.

"And to think I ever doubted you, Jerry."

He eyed her eagerly and, still clinging to her hand, drew her to his side.

Beside the table she playfully opened the drawer, took out some paper and placed it before him.

She had overplayed her game. Suspicion leaped into his eyes.

"Please, Jerry," she whispered softly.

He frowned, then turned impatiently from her.

She could have cried aloud with vexation. But it was all for Bob; she must not give up. Now, she was at Wallace's side, her hand upon his shoulder, and when she spoke there was injury in her tones.

"Now that we have found each other, don't fall me, dear. Let me believe in you."

Indifference held him, but after a moment he reached forth and touched her hair, and it was as if he fell anew under the spell of her.

"And you care enough to leave Mannering and come to me?"

What a question. It made Eileen pause. How far dared she go with this man? Then came the memory of Bob. She nodded her head.

With a sharp intake of breath he gathered her hungrily into his arms, but gently she drew away from him.

"You don't trust me, Jerry, and without trust there is no love."

"I'll prove it to you," he exclaimed, and would have embraced her anew. But resolutely she shook her head. Then, without another word, he turned to the table and reached for his pen.

Yet, even as he did so, even as Eileen waited there beside him with her hand upon his shoulder, there came a sound from the hallway. Heedless of the Japanese servant's protests, John Mannering was approaching.

"A trap," muttered Wallace, casting the pen aside and leaping to his feet.

And in that instant Eileen saw all her planning come to grief, and in her woe turned to the man she loved.

"John!" she cried hysterically. "John!"

He paused in the doorway adjusting himself to what he saw. It was true, then. Eileen was with Wallace.

Now, thrusting the Japanese servant aside, he strode into the room.

With a cry, Eileen rushed to her husband's side and mechanically his arm enfolded her, but his eyes were upon Wallace, who waited on the defensive. For a minute John paused as if expecting some explanation. Then, he looked down at Eileen and spoke in a strange, toneless voice.

"Dryden of the Star just called me on the telephone—something about you being in a raid on a road house."

She looked up at him. "You know, then."

Ah, she did not even deny it. John's arm dropped from about her and horror crept into his eyes.

"I had to do it, John, I had to do it so that he would be elected," she protested wildly.

John gasped, and his eyes smoldering with a mighty passion shifted to Wallace, standing with a cynical smile upon his face.

Her terror increased by the attitude of the two men, Eileen fairly beat her hands together in a perfect frenzy lest her husband might not understand.

"I had to do it, John, can't you understand? I just had to do it for him."

But John, almost throwing her out of his way, strode over to the table. Picking the picture up, he stared at it for a moment as if he could not believe his own eyes.

Then, with a terrible cry, he crushed it in his hands. As Eileen clutched at him with inarticulate explanations, he turned on her, his voice hoarse and choked.

BACK OF A GOOD NAME

Rarely in manufacturing history has a name entrenched itself so firmly in the confidence of the entire world as the name Dodge Brothers.

Everywhere and to everyone this name means but one thing: a product built honestly of the best available materials and sold at a just price.

Behind this product, this price and this enviable reputation lie certain impressive and fundamental facts.

So important is a knowledge of these facts to the motor car buyer that Dodge Brothers, Inc., have determined to publish them, from time to time, until every newspaper reader in America may be presumed to have read them:

Dodge Brothers, during the past eleven years, have built and sold more than one million four hundred thousand motor cars—and more than 90% of these cars are still in service. This record requires no comment. It stands impressively alone in motor car history.

It has never been Dodge Brothers policy to build yearly models. When an improvement, that is really an improvement, is discovered, it is made at once. Their slogan, "Constantly Improved But No Yearly Models" is familiar the world over.

Dodge Brothers build one chassis and only one. This policy materially lowers manufacturing cost. It also enables Dodge Brothers engineers to concentrate their entire time and thought on the betterment of this one type.

Dodge Brothers have never had an "off year" or an "off car." This is because they have never used the public as a testing ground for "new models" or lowered the quality of their product in the slightest degree. Every change has been an improvement on the original design.

Dodge Brothers pioneered in building the first all-steel open car and the first all-steel closed car. These epochal developments have saved Dodge Brothers owners many millions of dollars by materially prolonging motor car life and by effecting marked economies in manufacture. This construction has also reduced incalculably the danger from accident and fire.

Dodge Brothers sell directly through their dealers to the purchaser. There are no sectional distributing agencies to increase the cost of distribution and the cost of the car.

Dodge Brothers have never given so-called "free service." The car is sold at a fair and honest price. Nothing is added to this original purchase price to pay for service that the owner may never need.

Dodge Brothers Dealers were pioneers in unanimously adopting the flat rate service system. By this system, the owner knows in advance what any service job will cost. There are no unpleasant surprises in his bills.

The sturdiness and long life of Dodge Brothers Motor Car is reflected in its resale value. Comparatively few Dodge Brothers Motor Cars are advertised in the resale columns of the newspapers. The values they bring testify unanswerably to their goodness—and the public's belief in their goodness.

The time has passed when transient novelties can lead a thoughtful buyer to overlook the great essentials of motor car worth. A few of these essentials, outlined above, go far to explain why Dodge Brothers name is accepted, the world over, as the hall mark of dollar-for-dollar value.

12 Years Ago

From the Daily of October 14, 1913

Nine hundred and six children are enrolled in the New Decatur schools this term.

Harris, Cortner & Co. made the largest cotton shipment today ever known in the Twin Cities. The shipment to Italy was made up of 1,100 bales.

Mrs. Thomas E. Harrison and children left this morning for a visit to Birmingham.

Mrs. Gertrude Slade and Miss Laetia Slade of Cynthiana, Ky., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Mullen on Jackson street.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Malone and children will arrive the first of next week to be the guests of Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Bailey.

Three things cannot be called back, so we are told, the spoken word, the spent arrow and we move that the third be altered to read, "money spent for bootleg liquor."

Youth usually falls by the wayside in the struggle with age and experience, but there are none who can say that the youthful Buccaneers did not get a taste of glory at the expense of the Senators.

Five prisoners were released on parole from the Atlanta federal prison a few days ago. All are reported to be millionaires. Law enforcement seems to be making some progress after all.

After six months of the warmest weather on record, we now sleep about in a steady, drenching, penetrating rainfall, makes us wonder if this doubling up business is not a bit overdone by the weather man.

To the fellow who gets way out in the sticks, far from the centers of civilization, the agriculturist is a blessing. He comes to your assistance if you are stuck in the mud, goes to the next town if you need a mechanic, sympathizes with you in your tough luck, yet some folks think the world is full of mean people. They will change their minds when hard luck overtakes them.

Men should not raise such a row over the ever changing styles of woman's apparel so long as the men happen to be as fastidious as they seem to be at this time. We often wonder if the day will not come when the men will go back to silk breeches, silk stockings and lace cuffs. They are not so distant now it seems. We hope they will continue to smoke though, and leave the snuff-dipping habit for history to reveal.

The Elks of Sheffield are planning a $50,000 clubhouse, Anniston is to have another depot on Fourth street, contract has been let for the decoration of the city of Tuscaloosa during the state conference reunion to be held there in October, traffic signals have been placed on every important downtown corner in Bessemer. Indeed a sign of the times. What have Albany-Decatur to show for October? Good time to be wasting. Let's get in line with the rest of the state for the month and show activity equal to all the others. Launch it now, the sooner the more successful.

Fire damages up until this time have been comparatively small, thanks to an act of Providence. Fire officials of both the cities have issued warnings to people time after time asking that flues and furnaces be looked after before the lighting of the first fall fire. More than ordinary care should be taken by the citizens of these cities. Three calls have been answered since the first cold day, damage has been only slight, but such has been due to the activity of the fire departments. Call a man and have him look over your heating apparatus, the cost is small and may mean the cutting down of a much larger expense later on. Play safe in fighting the ever-present fire menace.

Without kicking up a great fuss over what the state highway commission has done in this section of the state in the past twelve months, we desire to call attention to the condition of the Bee Line highway between these cities and the capital of Limestone, picturesque Athens. There is no reason for cutting off Athens and Albany-Decatur with a bad stretch of rough and muddy roadway. Gentlemen of the state highway commission, it is high time something definite is done for this stretch of roadway. There is also human life to be considered. Last week two Limestone youths went to the doors of eternity when the car on which they were riding skidded into a telegraph pole. What is the answer? Muddy, sloppy, dirt roadway. It can be repaired at little cost. Do it now, the people of Morgan and Limestone counties will gladly pat you on the back for a constructive labor accomplished.

CONGRATULATIONS TO OUR SISTER CITIES ON POPULATION INCREASES.

We feel that congratulatory remarks are in order for those Alabama cities showing gains in the recent census.

figures compiled for the principal cities of the state. Eleven cities of the state are enumerated in census figures, notable climbs being made by Anniston, Dothan, Gadsden, Florence, Selma and Tuscaloosa. The larger cities, Montgomery and Mobile each had fine reports while Birmingham is moving slowly toward the quarter million line.

Of course we are sorry that the principal cities in the North, Albany-Decatur and Huntsville, were omitted from this lineup of Alabama representation. Huntsville has the right to be entered, having a good sized population and a beautiful and flourishing city. Albany-Decatur has accomplished more in the improvement line in the past year than has ever been noted in the history of the Valley cities. The population of the Twin Cities at the present time is nearer 15,000 than 10,000 and just that many people are Twin City boosters, believing in this locality, expending money, time and energy in the building of a beautiful city home.

We are glad that the eleven cities are all well above the 10,000 figure, we hope for them continued prosperity, growth, peace and happiness—may they continue to build for this great state, the finest in all the southland, the garden spot of America, tilled by the finest folks in the nation.

We believe that when the next census figure is compiled that two other cities will be added to the list comprising the calendar of Alabama prosperity—Albany-Decatur and Huntsville. We are fighting now to get into the select group, putting up a constructive and an aggressive fight, we believe in ourselves and our possibilities. It has been ably stated that "confidence is half the fight." Here's to the whole state, may she continue to push along ahead of the others, at last coming into the prominence which she should have been accorded years ago.

GOVERNMENT REPORT ON COTTON FIGURES EFFECTS THE FARMER

The recent government report on cotton showed an enormous increase over the previous statement and was accompanied with an unsatisfactory drop in cotton prices for the farmer. Naturally the farmer became intensely interested at once, though we doubt that he was any more greatly interested than his town brother.

Within the past few days, since the latest cotton estimate, cotton has taken a decided tumble and millions of dollars have no doubt been involved in the slump. The farmer who has had to sell his cotton to buy a winter shirt for his back or bread for his table is the farmer who has suffered. Others have been fortunate in the years in the past and were able to hold on to their cotton, waiting now for the expected rise in the staple price.

There are a number of reputable business men who present the matter in opposition to the government's making such a report, believing that there is no particular advantage in the report being made public and a decided hindrance to the welfare of the agriculturist. Yet, we doubt if there was no report made, if there would be a great deal of buying and selling. Would there not be a great deal of groping in the dark, people afraid to buy or sell for fear they might be taking the wrong step. It is the unfortunate man who suffers, the man who must meet his obligations and has no alternative but to sell at the present time. Suppose at the same time that the government report should have shown a decrease, would there not have been an occasion for rejoicing?

The present year has been an unusual year for all lines of business, the farmer has taken his reverses and his gains along with every one else. Many of us who have figured to a hair line have found that all our figures have been in vain. There has been, however, a stability back of all lines of business, no merchant has suffered acute losses, at least in this locality, and no merchant has made any tremendous gain for the year. There has been an even tenor of the business way that has been gratifying to practically every man in every line of business. If he has failed to gain in one line of his particular business, he has more than made up for it in another. We believe that in the last analysis that the farmer effected by the last government report will find his gains and losses in a like ratio.

IS THERE ANY REAL REASON TO DOUBT PLAYERS SINCERITY?

Today the last game of the world series is being played and there is not a fan in America who does not know that the players on the contending teams are giving all that they have, combining energy, thought, strategy and skill in a last grand effort to wrest the championship of the world from the other contender. Yet, only yesterday there were murmurs that the whole affair is a put-up job to get the people's money, though it is recalled that Manager Harris of the Senators called upon all his reserve strength in an effort to save the senators from being hurled into a defeat.

Many fans who have followed the games, play by play, have allowed an impression to creep in that the game is not on the square.

If the baseball player was not on the square it would soon show up, things of that nature do not remain hidden forever, news of a false step or a raw deal will always creep out no matter how well guarded the action may have been.

Baseball has been the ruling sport in America for the past thirty years at least. Is it fair to accuse the American public of patronizing something unclean, so national in scope, with their eyes blinded over that length of time? Certainly, the idea is a bit warped. A man who cannot trust his fellowman is usually a man who cannot be trusted altogether, himself. He has his own faults and suspects that everyone else suffers with a like malady.

Is there any reason to doubt that Walter Johnson has stood out as the champion of champions by virtue of his own abilities. Do you think that Walter Johnson needed other than a stout heart and the years of skill that he possesses? There is not a fan who doubts that Johnson leads because he is able to lead and that there is no need for any crooked play to put him across. Why then should there be any doubt regarding other players? Johnson is not expected to be associated with angels alone, but he is not the type of man who fans believe would go year after year in a game where there was something to be hidden. The series has strung out to the full limit of games because the teams are evenly matched, the pitching skill of one is offset by the batting skill of the other. The fans have had their full share for the price of admission to the gates and whether their respective team wins or loses they should not feel that the game has been other than on the square.

Baseball reigns because it has been kept on the square. The business of baseball is run along the same line as any other competitive business and it is a recognized fact that any competitive business cannot remain in the select circle enjoying good patronage unless it is conducted on the square.

The world series will end with the seventh game, provided there is not a tie score, baseball will be laid away for the coming six months but the deeds of the series will be written and rewritten, talked of and discussed for years to come—people enjoy discussing the methods of fair and clean competition.

THOUGHTS

OF THE WEEK

By J. A. West

NATURE IS TRUE

At last that much looked for rain has come, filling the creeks and wells with a generous share of water, and again nature has been true. Nature is always true, and is on the job constantly, never going to sleep. Every day as human beings we go to sleep to the many opportunities presented for improvement among the various lines, but nature with all her manifold duties must be ever alert, else some destructive force would wreck the well defined plan.

What a contrast is presented today compared with just a few short weeks ago, when it seemed that the Elixir of Life, water, was fast vanishing from the earth in the usual supply places, leaving a parched condition, which to our finite minds would wreck havoc.

How easy it is for mortals after enjoying all the blessings so lavishly bestowed to find fault and pick flaws. As set forth in the beginning of this article, Nature is true. The fault in many instances is with man, the custodian for only a short time of what nature has bestowed. We ruthlessly burn off from the earth the damp carpet which is deposited there for a specific purpose; we wreck the forests and woodlands with a ruthless hand, destroying wantonly what has taken years to establish; we fail to plant what we take off, reversing the established rule, that replenishing must go forward as the soil and nature's stores give up their best to us.

Those who have spent years in study along these lines, have admonished the public time after time about starting fires, stating emphatically that this would diminish the source of supply alarmingly, and that it was contrary and diametrically opposed to the natural plans of the universe in which we live.

It is stated that annually forest fires take their toll in natural products running way up into the millions of dollars. Besides this loss in the products of nature, a condition is brought about increasing the susceptibility to droughts, and consequent scarcity of water supply, because the earth attraction has been burned off, and earth's radio can't tune in on that particular section.

The pioneers of this country realized these facts from observation, their main teacher in that period, and zealously guarded woodland tracts, and to start a fire was a crime. As the pioneers passed, these forests which were their pride, passed with them, and we of the present are reaping some of the rewards of our thoughtlessness.

A nation can become impoverished by the ruthless acts of its inhabitants, just in the same manner that an individual can become so. Every state has its conservation department, and the key note of all the admonition sent broadcast from that department and the key note of all the admonition sent broadcast from that department is take care of the forests and plant back young trees to take the place of those used for lumber and other purposes and keep fire away from the woods at all hazards.

In close proximity to our own country, the national government has established a national forest reserve, which is just what the name implies, a natural reserve of timber lands for future use when the present supply becomes exhausted. This is a far seeing move for conservation, and will do much to replenish the fast vanishing woodlands from our midst.

A WAY TO DETERMINE YOUR LIFE SPAN

Public Health Measures, Linked with Personal Attention to Life's Vitality Sapping Leaks,
Add to One's Years.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A FEW weeks ago the New York State Department of Health put out some interesting facts relating to the expectation of life. The report mentions 1840 when the average age in New York was twenty-four and a half years. It contrasts this with 1925 when the estimated average age is thirty and a quarter years. This represents an increase of almost six years.

To have a gain of this amount there must be a material lengthening of life. It is probable the average duration of life has increased fifteen or twenty years since 1840.

These figures are so interesting that I will give you another encouraging statement. The expectation of life of a baby born in 1925 in New York City is almost ten years greater than it was in 1901.

Public health education has accomplished this. Perhaps I should say public health education plus voluntary and enforced practice of health giving methods.

The purification of the milk supply comes first among the measures which make for health. Pure water is given every community and the authorities demand protection of the foodstuffs. Some of the infectious diseases have been driven out by successful scientific attack.

Great improvement in health statistics may be accounted for by these community activities. But an even greater factor in increasing the expectation of life is found in the observance of the simple rules of personal hygiene.

Everybody knows now that you cannot be well if you have decayed and abscessed teeth, bad tonsils or neglected intestines. Ventilated sleeping and living rooms, the avoidance of dust and the practice of cleanliness are given thought by every well-informed person. Exercise, sunlight, sensible working hours, well-balanced meals and appealing recreation have added years to every life.

The eight-hour day, one rest day in seven, a vacation every year and the avoidance of unnecessary fatigue are vital factors in the improved conditions. A more philosophical attitude toward life has done away with much unnecessary worry and fear.

You have it in your hands to determine—within reasonable limits, at least—how long you are to live. While the expectation of life may be much greater for the race, what it is to be for you individually depends on your own co-operation with the public officials.

Sequent Smith (Charles Ashwander) tells you about his six little costumed choruses in ROSETIME. Advt. 1t.

Bureau Sales Of Cotton Increase

(Associated Press)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 14.—Cotton sold co-operatively by the Southern states this year as compared with 1924 will show an increase of something like 300,000 bales, Allen Northington, general manager of the Alabama Farm Bureau Cotton Association, estimates.

Although all of the associations are just passing the middle of the season, Mr. Northington believes that recent reports from each state are indicative of the fact that an increase will be shown by every association selling cotton co-operatively in the South.

"Substantial gains will be made in Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Mississippi, Arkansas and Oklahoma, as well as in Alabama," Mr. Northington said.

Mr. Northington predicts that deliveries in Texas will be much lower than what was expected last spring because of the severe drought in the section of the state that is covered most thoroughly by the association. Yields in this section vary from almost nothing to only a small fraction of the expected crop and some 50 to 60 counties are affected it is reported.

Association work in Texas has attracted much attention from other cotton growing states, in that the Texas association is now engaged in its second sign up campaign. This was the first of the large cotton marketing associations to start on a five year contract, Mr. Northington said. This contract expires with this year's crop and the membership campaign that has been under way for several months is making satisfactory progress.

The various state associations are all trying to show the highest gain over the showings made last season and Mr. Northington thinks that Alabama is well in the running. Picking time varies in some of the states and for this reason the exact rating of each state cannot be determined until the end of the season.

Cooperative cotton marketing associations have many advantages this year that they have never had in the past, Mr. Northington pointed out. They have direct connections with mills in New England as well as some of the mills in the Carolinas through the American Cotton Growers' exchange, which is a federation of several state associations.

This exchange has its own sales representatives in Liverpool, Bremen, Harve, Barcelona and also in Japan. In addition they also have sales connections in practically all of the other European markets.

Helpful Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have been going with a young man about my own age for the past five or six months. He has been going out in public with another girl that he used to go with before I knew him. He has asked me a number of times to marry him, so at last I consented. He has gone away and didn't even say good-bye to me before he left.

Do you think he really meant everything he told me? I quit him the next night with this girl and the next night he begged me to forgive him and go back with him again. He told me that he loved me. What shall I do? RED,

RED: Have a frank talk with your fiance, my dear. You cannot condemn a person for one slip and it may have been thoughtlessness on his part. However, you forgive him for the offense, but I think if he realizes how you feel in the matter he will not repeat his action. You may have acted on impulse when you say you "quit" him without an explanation. He may have had a very good reason for seeing the other young lady, and, somehow or other, things are never quite as bad as they really seem in the heat of the moment. If you talk things over with him quietly, without losing your temper, I am sure that everything will turn out in the right way.

FORT SITE MAY BE MADE INTO A PARK

Soldiers Met Death Years Ago At Hands Of Savages

(Associated Press)

SYLACAUGA, Ala., Oct. 14—Old "Fort Williams," a fort on the Coosa river near Fayetteville, a few miles south of this city, may be preserved for posterity and the land surrounding it made into a national park, if efforts of several interested persons are successful. Trotwood Moore, state librarian and archivist of Tennessee is interested in the fort because of its connection with Tennessee history.

At this old fort, a number of young Tennessee soldiers under the command of "Old Hickory" Jackson met death as they battled the Creek Indians under Red Eagle. They were buried near the fort and their graves were almost forgotten. Since this time, the land has been tilled and later allowed to go up in woods and full grown trees now grow over the soldiers' graves.

Mr. Moore is planning a visit to the fort, and members of the local Exchange club have suggested co-operating with him to have the land near the old fort turned into a National park as a fitting memorial to the soldiers of Tennessee.

Alabama was not a state when Jackson first blazed a trail through this part of the country in pursuit of Red Eagle, history reveals. When "Old Hickory" and his men fought through this part of the state, the land was mostly forest.

The Jackson trace has been marked through this district by stones and a Station here in memory of the gallant Tennesseean.

The citizens of Sylacauga are interested in the movement for the establishment of a national park at the fort, and it is believed that something definite will be done in the near future.

Rules Set Aside In Gin Situation

(Associated Press)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 14.—The acute ginning situation brought about by a shortage of standard weight cotton bagging, that has struck the cotton growing states, has been met in Alabama through an order from the State Department of agriculture, which sets aside temporarily the regulations on the type of bagging to be used.

In a letter to the ginners of the state, J. M. Moore, commissioner of agriculture and industries, pointed out the necessity of meeting the situation promptly in order to keep the 1925 cotton crop moving and stated that regulations would be removed for the time being. Mr. Moore, urged, however, that ginners buy only for their present needs in order that they might not be over-stocked with bagging not of standard regulations. His letter follows:

"A number of ginners advise that they are in need of standard bagging and unable to obtain enough to continue operation. We are reliably informed that a sufficient quantity of standard weight bagging may not be obtained by them and other ginners who are out until after the crisis of this ginning season is passed.

"In view of this emergency, I have conferred with members of the state board of agriculture and have obtained an agreement to temporarily suspend the present regulations to the end that you are hereby authorized to use any of the very best bagging material for the wrapping of cotton that you can obtain through the remainder of this ginning season. Do not, however, over-supply your needs for this season of any wrapping material other than the standard weight goods."

Officials of the state department of agriculture report that the bagging shortage has been felt in practically all of the cotton growing states. It is believed that the shortage was first reported from Memphis, to be verified by last week by reports from New Orleans.

In making the announcement of his letter to the ginners, Mr. Moore said that he believed that the situation would be relieved to a great extent by the use of sub-standard bagging and that this season's experience would serve as a lesson to ginners who were caught without sufficient bagging in sight to meet their needs.

CONSUMPTION MORE, COTTON PRICE IS UP

Favorable Trend Sends Futures Higher On The Exchanges

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Cotton consumed during September totaled 483,266 bales, compared with 448,665 bales in August this year, 438,373 bales September last year, the census bureau announced today.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 14.—The cotton market opened firm. A number of developments combined gave prices an upward trend from the start including better Liverpool than due. There was much rain in the belt, and rather unfavorable weekly crop and weather reports and much larger September consumption than expected.

The first trade showed gains of 11 to 21 points although most of the months eased off a few points right after the call. Prices soon rallied again, December trading up to 21:08 January to 21:03 and March 21:08. September consumption of lint cotton totaled 483,266 bales being larger than the August consumption and also that of September last year.

CROP SUMMARY IS MADE PUBLIC TODAY

Picking Interrupted By General Rainfall Over The Belt

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Crop and weather conditions in Southern states for the week ended yesterday were summarized by the department of agriculture today as follows:

There was considerable rainfall in the central, northern and northwestern portions of the cotton belt from Tennessee and northern portions of the belt the weather was generally favorable for field work and harvest made satisfactory advance.

There was some frost in northern cotton districts but no material damage occurred except from harm locally in the northwest.

In Texas cotton has made some new growth, but prospects for a top crop still are poor because of weevil and worm, with a general condition unchanged. Picking was delayed in the north and west and some damage to staple was reported.

In Oklahoma cotton deteriorated with harvest greatly retarded and grade lowered by cotton rain. There was considerable frost damage in the northeast but none elsewhere. Rains also were unfavorable in Arkansas, except in the southern portion, where the weather was favorable for harvest. No frost damage was reported.

Correct weight can be yours

be shapely!

"I DO NOT want to be thin! I just want to be my right weight! I want those hollows filled out. I just want enough firm, plump flesh on my bones to fill out my figure."

Of course you do. You want a figure that you can drape your clothes on—not just hang them on! What's the use of having pretty clothes, if they just hang on you?

And what would you say if you were told you could have the figure you want? A graceful, well rounded body—firm, solid flesh—just enough—just your right weight? You'd be mighty happy, wouldn't you?

Well, then, be happy—because you can have it! Put plenty of red cells in your blood and watch your weight go up to where you want it! That's what's the matter with you! Your blood is impoverished. You need more rich, red blood. S. S. S. is the thing to put red blood in your system. S. S. S. helps Nature build red blood cells by the millions.

You just try S. S. S. and watch how quickly you begin to fill out your clothes. Notice your skin clear of unsightly blemishes—your appetite increases—strength comes to flabby muscles—and vim and vigor fill your whole system. It's red blood that does it. And S. S. S. surely helps Nature build that red blood. S. S. S. is sold by all drug stores. The larger bottle is more economical.

SERIES HEADLIGHTS

Earl Smith—Pirates

Earl Smith, catcher, has been in the service of the Pittsburgh Pirates for a little more than one season, coming here from the Braves. He gained prominence as a member of the New York Giants from 1919 to 1922, where he alternated behind the bat with Frank Snyder, and has participated in two world's series, both against the New York Yankees.

He has hit about .300 for the Pirates and appears to be satisfied in his new berth after having had differences with the New York and Boston managements in the past. Smith is of the rugged type, a constant talker on the field. He stands 5 feet 10 1-2 inches, and weighs 180 pounds.

Earl has had two big batting years in the majors. .336 in 1921 and .335 last year, when he shifted from the Braves to his present position.

During the winter months he engages in the real estate business in the city of his birth, Hot Springs, Ark. He is 28 years old.

Gooch—Pirates

Johnny Gooch, born in Smyrna, Tenn., in 1899 is playing his fifth season behind the bat for Pittsburgh, having been purchased from Birmingham of the Southern Association in September, 1921. Like Earl Smith, he is a rugged man, one who guards the plate in the old fashioned way. In the off season he is an automobile salesman.

Gooch started his diamond career at Newport News, Va., then went to Birmingham for two years until he as sold to Pittsburgh. In 1922 he caught 105 games and hit .329. This season he has held his average at about .300 all the way.

Gooch stands 5 feet, 10 1-2 inches, and weighs about 180 pounds. He bats either right or left handed.

Albany High Battles Saints Friday In First Home Go; Decatur and Y On Trips

Albany high school will furnish the grid menu for local fans this week while Decatur High and the Y. M. C. A. elevens journey to foreign fields to hamper ancient foes into submission. Albany high will attempt to dislodge the Saints from St. Bernard in their claim to greatness in the northern section of the state.

Coach Alford will not answer unprepared Friday afternoon when the whistle sounds the opening of hostilities. His team is in good condition with only a few minor injuries resulting from the Leighton conflict. Alford will use his first string eleven with one or two changes likely in the backfield. The high school backs tore through the Y line almost at will Tuesday afternoon in a half hour scrimmage and indications point that the high eleven will be in the best shape for St. Bernard that the eleven has been in through the year.

Decatur high will have plenty to do in stopping the thrusts of Morgan County high when the two grapple at the Hartselle fair grounds. Decatur high is a great deal stronger than last season and Coach Grimes has been driving his men full tilt in the hope that Morgan County high will be stopped. His eleven is likewise in good shape for the coming fray and look forward to a chance for knocking the Hartselle lads from their perch.

The Y. M. C. A. clan will depart for Petersburg, Tenn., early Friday morning where they meet the Morgan Preppers Friday afternoon. The same lineup is likely to go against the Morgan clan that appeared against Falkville last Friday with the exception of Speer at right end and Sims at left tackle. Speer is out for the time being with a fractured collarbone while Sims is nursing a bad shoulder. Ellison, who suffered a severe cut over the left eye in the battle of the past week, is pulling along in good shape and will be ready to serve at his regular backfield station. Shelton will likely be ready for services at left end.

A friendly rivalry will exist at Morgan when the two teams clash. Tuck, Gustin and Garrison, three local boys are mainstays on the Morgan eleven. The latter two saw a year of service with the Y squad last season and the local outfit looks forward with pleasure to meeting their former team mates, though they will not spare any effort to halt the trio.
